THE GLASGOW BOYS, THE GLASGOW GIRLS, THE SCOTTISH COLOURISTS AND THE FRENCH CONNECTION

Harry Fletcher MA in Ed. BA Cert Ed. MLIA (Dip)

In the 1880s and 1890s, several artistic colonies arose in Europe and America following a style of painting known as 'naturalism'. The lecture considers the work of three such successful Scottish colonies and the valuable contribution they made to the development of the 'modern movement' in art.

Lecturer, Harry Fletcher, is a successful portrait painter and practising artist. He has worked previously as Head of Art and Design in a large Comprehensive School; an A-level examiner and an Open University tutor. He is now a freelance lecturer and leads art appreciation courses throughout the UK and across Europe.

Our lectures are free to members. If you would like to join Fylde DFAS or attend this lecture as a guest (admission fee £7.00) please contact us at nadfas.fylde@googlemail.com or visit our website at www.fyldedfas.org.uk
